- Business and civic experience: I have volunteered for the nonprofit Generation Nation for a year now. My involvement with Generation Nation has been an ongoing experience since September of 2015. Through Generation Nation, I work to coordinate programs and support the diverse emerging leaders who serve, like I did, on the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Youth Council. My roles include: Coordinate community relations efforts, serve as liaison between youth and community agencies, Mentor diverse youth for civic leadership building, Develop ideas and solutions for innovation and partnership, Assist with project planning and implementation
- Areas of expertise and interests/skills: Being a first-generation college student and young leader, I believe I can provide a unique perspective for CRC. I was raised in a low-income home by my single mother who not only does not have a college education but is also an immigrant. Being a part of these minority communities made me aware of the inequality in Charlotte. This awareness only expanded when I attended high school at West Charlotte Senior High where the student population closely resembles the preferred racial makeup of a 'colored' school in the 1940s. These experiences have empowered me to voice my opinion and speak for the members of my community that are too afraid and too discouraged to realize that their voices matter. In addition to this, I have worked with CRC's Education and Young Leaders subcommittee for the last six months. During this time, I have demonstrated commitment by attending weekly meetings. I have also heavily participated in the creation of the subcommittees' mission and vision goals and have partnered with Vanessa Clarke to create a channel for underrepresented youth of Charlotte to succeed.
